

Literacy Matters

September is National Literacy Month

The Chatham County Literacy Council (Chatham Literacy) taught 185 adults last year to read so they could earn a GED, become a U.S. citizen, obtain a job or a promotion, get involved in their community and children's school, or achieve a personal goal. Chatham Literacy is using National Literacy Month to raise awareness of literacy needs in Chatham County and raise funds in a campaign called Literacy Matters.

Please buy a Literacy Matters t-shirt to support and promote literacy in Chatham County, and to join in the exciting activities planned in September and throughout the coming year. This is not just any t-shirt. Each shirt will be printed with a unique number. Your shirt is your ticket to Chatham Literacy events and benefits, including the ones described below.

Buy a t-shirt now to support literacy education in Chatham County, and reap the rewards!

Buy a t-shirt, help Chatham Literacy, and join in the fun

The unique number printed on your Literacy Matters shirt qualifies you to:

- Win monthly prizes and discounts at local businesses --info will be posted on web and Facebook pages.
- Participate in the International Literacy Day events on September 8:
 - Proudly wear your Literacy Matters t-shirt in support of greater literacy from noon till one, or even better, all day.
 - Post photos of yourself and others wearing the t-shirt on the Chatham Literacy Facebook page.
 - Get in the group photo of supporters at the Courthouse in Pittsboro at 6:30 pm.
 - Wear your t-shirt at participating local businesses and receive discounts.
- Free admission to the Chatham Literacy Music Festival at the end of September.

Order online at chathamliteracy.org or send a check with the order form below. If you order before August 15, you pay only $20 per shirt. After August 15, shirts are $25 each. Pickup or shipping options are available.
